JFK, ADVISERS WEIGH ACTION ON LAOS

Abuses at Missile Bases Are Ripped By Sen. McClellan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said today costly strikes and work slowdowns at missile bases invite a tough new law to outlaw unions responsible for such things.

McClellan said his Senate Investigations subcommittee in hearings this week produced "evidence beyond any reasonable doubt" that organized labor at the Cape Canaveral missile base abused the strike weapon to enrich its members at taxpayers' expense.

The subcommittee has heard a parade of witnesses denounce the 109 strikes and uncounseled work slowdowns reported at Canaveral in the last 4½ years, charging these have inflated costs by millions of dollars and slowed the program.

McClellan said it was clear that most of the strikes were called on flimsy grounds with "the premeditated purpose" of throwing missile projects behind schedule so workers could draw overtime pay in a rush to catch up.

The subcommittee has produced evidence that many plumbers and electricians drew wages up to $764 a week, including overtime computed at four times the regular wage rate.

Robert Palmer, top labor leader at the base, has acknowledged strikes "must have" slowed the missile program. He denied any strike was designed to force overtime wage payments, and swore he never authorized a walkout.

Palmer is business manager of Local 756 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Witnesses have said other unions follow his lead on strike and work slowdown matters.

Joseph W. Morgan, Teamsters Union general organizer in Florida, invoked the Fifth Amendment constitutional provision against possible self-incrimination when asked Friday about his own role in a strike which virtually paralyzed the base for four weeks in 1957, near the peak of the rush to gear up missile programs.

Algerian Rebels Active Again

Spread Pamphlets Urging New Revolt

ALGIERS (AP)—Diehard rightist settlers who remained underground during the abortive revolt against President Charles de Gaulle emerged today with defiant calls for a new uprising.

Less than three days after the generals' revolt was crushed, tracts appeared on the streets of Algiers calling for resistance to De Gaulle.

Tracts of the "Organization Secret Army" threatened a new uprising in a desperate bid to preserve European domination of this North African territory. No one bothered to erase dozens of OAS slogans painted on streets and walls.

Government officials, busy with a sweeping purge of the army, police and civilian administration, admitted the European underground organizations posed a continual threat.

But mass arrests, muzzling of the rightwing press and a purge of police and administrative services were expected to reduce the effectiveness of the underground. The mass of Algeria's million Europeans seemed resigned.

Few leaders of rightwing underground movements came out into the open during the short-lived revolt. But authorities are aware that between 5,000 and 10,000 arms disappeared from gendarme depots during the revolt and not all have been recovered.

Meanwhile, Louis Joxe, French minister for Algerian affairs, met far into the night with government officials in the heavily guarded administration building here, discussing new steps to impose De Gaulle's will on the army and restive settlers.

Among government measures announced so far were penalties against 200 high-ranking officers and dissolution of several crack paratroop units totaling about 5,000 men.

In Paris, Gen. Maurice Gourgand, the French commander at Constantine who joined the rebellion, was taken to solitary confinement in Sante Prison.

Like Gen. Maurice Challe, imprisoned chief of the rebellion, Gourgand could be sentenced to death by firing squad or guillotine.

None Injured In Highway Mishaps

A 21-year-old Kensington man was cited following one of two traffic mishaps investigated by highway patrolmen Friday night.

Robert D. Beadnell received a citation for failure to stop in an assured clear distance after he drove his southbound car into the rear of an auto being operated by Shirley Kreps, 26, of Hanoverton, on Rt. 9, two miles north of Hanoverton, at 8 p.m.

Minor damage was sustained by both cars, patrolmen said.

In the other mishap, on Rt. 62, three miles east of Alliance, at 8:05 p.m., Ida B. Waffer, 61, of Alliance, drove her car out of a road into the path of an eastbound auto driven by Harold E. Rainsberg, 20, of New Philadelphia, causing minor damage to both vehicles.

U. S. Will Try Manned Space Shot In Week

Identity of Chosen Astronaut Secret; Rocket on Pad Now

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The U. S. space program will thrust closer to that of the Soviet Union one morning next week when the first American astronaut is rocketed on a high arc ride into near space.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, announcing plans for a limited man-in-space shot, made official today what has been an open secret here for days.

Rocket On Launch Pad
The tall, white rocket and the space capsule atop it already are in place on the launch pad.

NASA said the launch—climaxing about 2½ years of Project Mercury preparation—will come about an hour after daybreak "in the next week or so."

From other sources, it was learned the shot is set for next Tuesday morning, if all goes well. That would be 20 days after Soviet air force Maj. Yuri Gagarin became the first known man to orbit the earth. The Soviet Union claimed he did so in a five-ton space craft.

Next week's U. S. manned space trip will not be as ambitious. In the lingo of space agency people here, an orbital voyage by an American is "still down the road." It may come later this year.

On this coming trip, an astronaut whose identity is still a secret, will be strapped into a 3,000-pound capsule and sent aloft by a relatively low powered Redstone ballistic missile. The planned course would carry chamber to a peak altitude of about 115 miles. It would land at a point southeast of here where Navy and Air Force ships and planes will be poised to recover it and its passenger from the water.

During a 15-minute flight up to about 4,500 miles an hour, the astronaut will experience about five minutes of weightlessness, an eerie sensation, and terrific forces up to 11 times that of gravity. One of three men, all married and fathers of children, will get the historic honor of making the first U. S. space tour. They are Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., 39, of New Concord, Ohio; Air Force Capt. Virgil I. Grissom, 35, of Mitchell, Ind.; and Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard, 37, of East Derry, N. H.

These were "finalists" out of a group of seven astronauts chosen two years ago for intensive training looking toward space flight. The seven, volunteers every one, had been drawn from an original list of 110.

Homer Bow Dies; Outdoor Writer Once Worked Here
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP)—One of the nation's leading outdoor writers, Homer Bow, is dead at 64. Bow, who died Friday after an illness of several months, was a brother of Ohio's Republican congressman Frank T. Bow.

At the time of his death, he was outdoor editor of the Evansville Courier, where he had been a staff member since 1944. Before that, he worked for the Canton (Ohio) Repository, Salem (Ohio) News and Carmi (Ill.) Democrat-Tribune.

In 1947, Bow was voted one of the four top men in his field in the country by the Outdoor Writers Association of America. His death Friday in Deaconess Hospital was attributed to a ruptured major artery.

Survivors include his widow, Elizabeth, and four children.

Laotian Emissary Fails In Attempt To Arrange Truce

LUANG PRABANG, Laos (AP)—A government emissary journeyed into no man's land under a white flag today, hoping to meet pro-Communist rebels and arrange a truce. He failed to make contact.

The hard pressed royal government, meanwhile, ordered its troops not to fire on Pathet Lao rebels unless fired upon.

Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, government military strongman and deputy premier, dispatched the white flag of truce from the administrative capital of Vientiane in what he called a gesture to prove "our good will for peace."

The emissary spent four hours in no man's land, the government said.

Met With U. S. Advisers
Phoumi had met with his officers and U. S. military advisers before sending the emissary out. But Western diplomats, noting Phoumi's hourly broadcasts appealing for a truce have gone unanswered, were skeptical the rebels would agree.

Phoumi sent Lt. Col. Siho Lamphouthakou to Vang Khe, a town 60 miles north of Vientiane on the main highway. Vang Khe is close to Vang Vieng, a stronghold recently captured by the pro-Communists. It was not clear which side holds it.

The rebels have been demanding that cease-fire talks be held on territory they control, claiming they are the victors in Laos' internal struggle. They had started new offensives just before the British-Soviet cease-fire call, gathering in new areas near Vientiane.

The Laotian crisis was felt anew in Washington, where President Kennedy called an unusual Saturday meeting of the National Security Council.

U. S. May Ask Action
(Anxiety over military advances the Laotian rebels have made with their Soviet-supplied arms, further demoralizing royal Lao army soldiers, brought speculation in Washington that a U. S. decision to call for Allied military intervention may be near.)

Meanwhile, a worried King Savang Vathana sought quietly in his royal capital here a way to unite his kingdom, torn in a civil war that threatens to spread. The king discussed with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, premier of neighboring neutral Cambodia, possible compromises to end the fighting.

Sihanouk was openly pessimistic about the impasse. Savang was described as deeply concerned because his leftist Pathet Lao counterparts have failed to meet the cease-fire Britain and the Soviet Union asked five days ago.

School Board Stresses Need of Levy Renewal
Supt. of Schools Paul E. Smith and Board of Education members urged voters' approval of the renewal of the four-mill school operating levy at Tuesday's primaries and pointed out the rapid strides made in the Salem public school system in recent years.

"The levy is actually a decrease of a half-mill from the previous millage," said Supt. Smith. "It will provide the necessary funds for continued school operations for the ensuing year."

The school board, in citing Salem's good school record, declared:

"The past support of the community has enabled the Salem schools to reach an adequate level of achievement. Class sizes in the elementary school are good. The pupil-teacher ratio is less than 30-1."

"Participation in the National Defense Education Act has provided teachers with projectors, books, language tapes and records, $18,000 worth of chemistry films and additional testing and counseling services.

"In addition to teaching the 3 R's and the other fundamentals of learning, the Salem schools offer many special services: "Kindergarten; classes for the hard of hearing, speech correction, slow-learning, home instructions for shut-in children; Psychological testing and guidance services; "Health services; Driver training; College preparatory courses; Adult Trade and Industry courses; Technical Institutions."

Murray Corporation Net Sales Decline
The Murray Corporation, which operates the Eljer enamelware division in Salem, today reported that consolidated net sales for six months ended Feb. 28 were $19,566,633 as compared with $26,276,946 for the corresponding period last year.

Net loss from operations for the same period was $708,934. This loss is equivalent to 70 cents per share of common stock compared with a profit of 42 cents for same period last year, the company said.

Says Court Didn't Consider Evidence

Prosecutor Files New Action In Job Mix-Up

LISBON — The Seventh District Court of Appeals' order this week on Columbiana County commissioners to reinstate four Democrat appointees to their Court-house jobs and give them back pay was made without consideration of all the evidence.

This is the key point in a motion for findings of fact prepared Friday by Prosecuting Atty. G. William Brokaw and Atty. Howard M. Cole of Lisbon, assistant prosecutor.

At the conclusion of their brief, they stated, "We submit that an examination (not a re-examination for none was made of the exhibits) be made which will substantiate the findings of fact which are herewith respectfully submitted."

The four former employees—all women—were replaced by Republican appointees Feb. 1 after the GOP regained control of the commissioners office.

The four Democrats filed a writ of mandamus action against the county commissioners, claiming they were illegally discharged. They contend a non-competitive examination taken at appointment gives them Civil Service protection.

Copies of the nomination for appointment, the examination and certificate of eligibility of the four Democrat appointees were the exhibits at the April 5 hearing in Youngstown.

Accompanying the motion for findings of fact is an affidavit of Miss Carolyn Malone of Salineville, assistant shorthand court reporter for Columbiana County, who worked the April 5 hearing.

She states that the exhibits were offered and admitted in evidence, that they have been in her possession ever since and have not been requested by, nor examined by any member of the Court of Appeals to her knowledge.

Brokaw and Cole made the following findings of fact which will be submitted to the Court of Appeals for signatures of the judges:

1—The so-called "non-competitive examination" taken by the plaintiffs and introduced in evidence as exhibits 1, 2, 3 and 4 is in fact a "questionnaire" and not an "examination" within the letter and spirit of the constitution and statutes.

2—There are not statutes or ordinances creating the positions of photo-film operator, PBX operator, microfilm operator, photostat operator or clerk to the dog warden and setting forth the salaries of the same.

3—Plaintiff Patricia Barborak took a purported examination for the position of photostat operator on Dec. 1, 1959, and was appointed to the position of microfilm operator on Dec. 7, 1959, without ever having taken an examination as a microfilm operator.

4—Plaintiff Camilla Smith took a purported examination for the position of photostat operator on Dec. 1, 1959, and was appointed to the position of microfilm operator on Dec. 7, 1959, without ever having taken an examination as a microfilm operator.

5—The military seems anxious only that the political leaders should come to an agreement on the country's political and economic problems.

But agreement appeared remote at this stage.

Possibility of Intervention by SEATO Seen

Laotian Reds Still Stalling on Call For Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy discussed the deepening crisis in Laos today with his top diplomatic and military advisers. New U. S. moves were believed under urgent consideration.

Some officials said the possibilities to be considered ranged all the way from further waiting for a cease-fire to the extreme of U. S. and Allied intervention under the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO).

Communists Stalling
Russia has agreed with Britain on the principle of a cease-fire between the Soviet-backed rebel forces and the pro-Western forces of Premier Boun Oum, but the Reds have stalled on fulfilling the cease-fire agreement.

Today's conference was announced as a meeting of the National Security Council, but some officials who do not regularly attend its meetings were observed entering the White House.

These included Charles E. Bohlen, the State Department's top-ranking expert on Russia; Edward R. Murrow, director of the U. S. Information Agency; and Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr.

Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, arrived carrying maps and charts.

Council's Third Meeting
It was the security council's third meeting in eight days with Laos coming in for primary attention.

The council met last Saturday, and again Thursday.

U. S. officials said today that by delaying the effectiveness of a cease-fire in Laos, the Communist-led rebels seem to be trying to compel the Boun Oum government to treat them as victors and accept them as the effective government in Laos.

This interpretation was based on a rebel demand that the government send delegates to a truce talk at Communist headquarters.

The Soviet news agency Tass said that Prince Souvanna Phouma, whom the Communists treat as the legal premier instead of Boun Oum, had given the Lao government 48 hours to send delegates to a conference at Xieng Khouang.

Top administration leaders are known to be deeply concerned about the increasingly belligerent attitude of the Communist bloc toward the United States.

Some here fear that the failure of the American-backed rebel invasion of Cuba plus Kennedy's reluctance to become involved in war in southeast Asia may be taken as evidence of weakness and indecision on the part of the Washington government.

Confident Living

How to Handle Situations Calmly

When tempers round the big conference table had gotten so stormy that three or four indignant gentlemen were talking all at once, one man suddenly rose and strolled over to a big couch at the far end of the room. With an air of great deliberation he removed his jacket, loosened his tie and lay down. Discussion ceased as we stared in surprise at this unusual behavior.

"What's the matter?" someone asked. "Aren't you feeling well?"

"I'm feeling fine," replied the man on the couch. "I just noticed I was getting mad, that's all. So I decided to lie down. I have found that you can't get mad lying down."

Scene of this incident was a committee meeting on religious action for world peace — and our own proceedings thus far had afforded a fine object-lesson in why world peace is hard to come by. The committee was composed of laymen with a few ministers sprinkled in. Among those present there were some with pet preconceived ideas which they wanted to promote. If they had trouble getting themselves listened to, they would raise their voices a bit and even pound the table.

FINDING HIMSELF suddenly the center of attention, our colleague on the couch gave us a brief lecture on the importance of keeping calm, and again remarked that one sure brake on anger is to put yourself in a reclining position. He spoke softly, in a very low voice.

Someone said, "Speak up! We can't hear what you're saying."

He replied, "That is the trouble with this meeting. Everybody has been speaking up too loudly." And he added this telling observation: "You can't argue in a whisper."

He then suggested that we notice his hands. They were draped limply against the upholstery of the couch, with the fingers open and relaxed. He said, "Another thing I have noticed is that when I get mad my fingers get tense and before I know it I have clenched my fist. So I take care that my fingers stay uncurled. With your fingers relaxed you can't get mad."

These were interesting tips. And you had to admire the man's aplomb. It affected us all. It was good medicine for what ailed that meeting.

WHAT A BLESSING it is to be able to stay cool and collected in the midst of difficulty and commotion! It is something to pray for, something to work at. When we get tense or angry or upset we bungle things, muff opportunities, irritate other people. To be more effective we must learn to handle situations calmly.

One way to go about it is from the physical side, as practiced by this man who used the simple expedient of lying down. Put your body in a posture conducive to relaxation and the chances are that your emotional condition, too, will grow quieter.

To counteract that involuntary tensing of muscles when something tries your temper — a mechanism we inherit from the cave man whose survival depended upon instant readiness for combat — deliberately untense those muscles. You can thus inhibit the rise of anger. These are good techniques for emergencies where much hinges on keeping your head, yet where your feelings are getting out of hand.

THE KEY to keeping calm consistently, however, is in the attitudes of mind. A man whom I have long admired for his cool composure at all times is S. S. Kresge, founder of the Kresge chain of retail stores. One day I asked him how he would explain this quality in himself. He answered, "I have a simple philosophy: Keep God in mind. Don't let anything get your goat. Tend to your own business."

That time-honored rule of tending to one's own business can save us an awful lot of agitation. Many people keep themselves in a constant state of tension over everybody else's business. The smart man looks sharp at a situation to see what it contains that is his responsibility, his concern or perhaps his opportunity, and lets the rest of it go by.

In the last analysis taking situations calmly is a matter of self-control. And the only way to be securely in control of yourself is to be under the control of wisdom greater than your own. That is why point number one in Mr. Kresge's formula is "Keep God in mind."

When someone says, "Your Johnny's just like you," is it a compliment, or is it an accusation? Whether you like it or not, children do follow in their parents' footsteps.

Johnny learns that kindness and courtesy are virtues, because you are kind and courteous. He learns to love good books and music, because you love them. He learns, through your example, to speak truthfully.

And if going to church and church school regularly is also a part of your usual routine, Johnny will develop that habit just as he has these others.

Then it is a compliment when someone says, "Your Johnny's just like you," for you are doing all within your power to lead him in the right direction.

How to Create New Jobs

Secretary of Labor Goldberg isn't missing a chance to voice his concern for unemployment in the United States. His latest statement is in the current Saturday Evening Post.

In the next 10 years, he points out, 26 million new workers will be coming into the labor force, plus 3 million women who temporarily have left it. But there will be only 15.5 million subtractions from the labor force—deaths and retirements.

Therefore, before 1970, the United States will need to find work for 13.5 million more people than are employed now, even when employment is satisfactory. It isn't satisfactory now. There are 5.5 million unemployed, balanced against 65 million employed, but with an oddity about the ratio.

Employment is rising satisfactorily, all things considered, being now at an all-time high. But unemployment shows no signs of declining substantially. This means that many hundreds of thousands of men and women have no immediate prospect of going back to work and other hundreds of thousands have no prospect of employment at all—ever.

THE SECRETARY OF LABOR talks earnestly at every opportunity about making people available for jobs by retraining programs, by relocating workers and various manipulations to prepare people for work. But he, more than the ordinary citizen who thinks only part-time about the problem, must be aware of an acute lack of ideas for making new jobs.

As the recession recedes and pressure increases for stepping up the efficiency of production, there conceivably could be even more unemployment than there is now. There is a strange thing about automation in this respect.

Everybody talks about it as the bugaboo behind manpower displacement, but no one talks about the fact that automation is a form of job competition.

Management automates to improve efficiency. Management buys machines to displace manpower only when manpower costs exceed machine costs.

Whenever automation increases so fast that displaced manpower cannot be relocated it is a sign that manpower costs have risen so fast they have become a compelling reason to automate.

SECRETARY GOLDBERG undoubtedly has thought of these things. He must be aware of numerous examples of automation as the answer to the problem of rising costs and spotty efficiency. Yet in his public statements he continues to talk and write as if more jobs were going to spring into being as the children of millions of wishful thoughts that this might be so.

It is not going to be so. Excessively high labor costs will continue to spur management to look for ways to increase efficiency by substituting machines for men.

Unemployment will continue to increase among those who now are its specially victims—the untrained, the uneducated, the middle-aged, the elderly, Negroes, workers in declining industries like coal mining and workers in highly automated industries like auto manufacturing.

People like these can be relocated, retrained and rehabilitated endlessly without adding a single job to the job total.

This is the problem of unemployment in the 1960s—not how to reshuffle jobs but how to create 13.5 million new ones in the next 10 years.

Dilemma of Our Era

Those who have noted the resemblance between the Anglo-French attack on Suez in 1956 and the United States-backed attack on Cuba in 1961 can go further now and note a resemblance between recent events in Algeria and a former event in Korea.

Ten years ago this month, Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur was relieved of his military responsibility in the Far East by President Truman over a fundamental disagreement on policy. Like the French militarists who wanted to shoot it out, Gen. MacArthur believed the Korean War should be fought to a showdown. He was overruled.

This is one of the recurrent issues of the day.

Natalie Sharpnack

Many hearts were saddened by the death of Miss Natalie Sharpnack Thursday.

She had been a teacher and principal in the Salem public school system for so long that it didn't seem appropriate for her to take retirement last June yet she had dedicated herself to the teaching profession for 37 years.

Pupils and former students at McKinley School will miss her especially.

Everyone a Salesman

The Salem Chamber of Commerce and Salem Industrial Development Corporation are thinking positively as they combine their efforts to form a "Salem Ambassadors Club."

The objective is to make all traveling representatives of Salem companies special envoys for the community, particularly in the never-ending search for new industry. Some of Salem's business representatives travel widely, several to far corners of the globe, but those whose duties take them to other states are urged to consider themselves special emissaries.

In fact, every citizen should be ready to speak a good word for Salem when they are out of town. No one is going to boost our fine community unless we do it.

Children are parading in their own picket lines and the idea seems to be spreading. "Give Us Back Our Playground" was cry of moppets in protest against adult U.N. pickets monopolizing streets around U.N. skyscraper and it deserved applause. But kids have been picketing against teachers boards of education decrees, curfews, etc., in some places.

We look for small fry carrying these banners any day: "Children Yes, Parents No!" "To the Wall With Spelling Teachers!" "No Back talk from Grownups!" and "The Bastille For Popper and Mommer."

Also, perhaps, "Hockey Players of the World Unite!" "Give Us Our Marks First and Examinations Later," "Schools Are For Sleeping," "We Demand the Eight-Hour Recess," "A Kid Who Refuses To Do His School Lessons Is a Freedom Fighter," "Down With Teachers Who Read Exam Papers Carefully," "Parents Unfair To Hot-rodgers," "Teacher, Go Home," "Auto Licenses For Kindergarten Pupils," "Down With Adults!" and "Throw The Homework Out!"

New England personal income leaped at a higher rate than averages for all states combined. This may be so, but it's more likely this is an error due to fact every New Englander counts his money twice.

Tourist Gap In U.S.

By JOSEPH R. SLEVIN

The Kennedy administration wants to spend $3 million to attract tourists to the United States.

It's a remarkable move for crusty Uncle Sam. Foreigners long have had the notion that there wasn't much to see in the United States — and that we didn't care whether they saw it or not.

But the United States has had a change of heart. The administration is anxious to bring more foreign visitors to this country and it has decided that a multi-million-dollar advertising and promotion campaign will turn the trick.

The big awakening is a simple matter of dollars — and — cents. Much as the administration may love the foreigners for themselves, it loves them even more for the money they will spend once they get here.

A foreign tourist is just like an export. But instead of our shipping goods overseas, the tourist comes here and buys the merchandise or the services that he wants.

IN AN AGE when people are

Toughening The Mind

By TRUMAN TWILL

There once was a raging fight over the theory that children could be protected against communicable diseases like smallpox, whooping cough, typhoid fever and others by immunizing them with the disease, itself, in a weakened version.

It is sad to know there's still a fight over this, though the theory has been proved beyond any shadow of a doubt. But the fight is easy to understand.

The reasoning of the people who feel this way about physical immunization is the same as the reasoning of the people opposed to mental immunization — and they're everywhere.

You never heard of mental immunization? Of course you've heard of it.

Mental immunization is the process of exposing young people to weakened versions of strong ideas for the purpose of building up their resistance, in case they ever meet the real thing in its most virulent form. It's education, as opposed to indoctrination and vocational training.

It is the same principle as polio vaccine, tetanus shots and diphtheria antitoxin, except the purpose is to toughen the mind instead of the body.

But there is surprising opposition to it even by people who have persuaded themselves that physical immunization is sound. These people claim that the way to keep human minds from being jarred out of balance by the impact of virulent ideas is never to let them be aware of the ideas at all.

That might not be a bad idea if children actually could be shut away from ideas — kept in mental mothballs. But some fanatics have tried to shut away children from the physical world, to protect them. If they didn't fail, they, themselves, then had to be shut away for doing a cruel and unnatural thing to human beings in their care. Immunization by contact is part of our social wisdom.

Nature's way of doing this is still trustworthy. Some of the best immunized people alive got that space gap and the dollar gap, there also is a tourist gap — and the United States is on the short end of this one just as it's on the short end of all the others.

Americans spend much more money to visit foreign countries than their citizens spend to visit the United States. The gap amounts to a solid $1.142 billion and it's getting wider every year.

The tourist gap is important because it's responsible for almost one-third of a worrisome yearly balance of payments deficit that has been draining gold out of the United States and into foreign government vaults.

The administration figures that it will have taken a big step toward cutting the deficit if it can bring more tourists to this country.

Our biggest two-way travel is with the Canadians and they are the only people who spend more money to visit the United States than they collect from American tourists.

Americans spent $678 million in Western Europe last year. But the citizens of Western European countries spent only $123 million here.

One of the first things the administration is doing in its bene-to-tourists campaign is to cut consular office red tape that repels European travelers before they ever leave home.

The purpose is to make the tourists feel welcome instead of treating them like would-be immigrants that the United States would just as soon didn't come in any case.

EMBARRASSING personal questions have been stricken from visa applications and a short-form questionnaire has been adopted. The distasteful finger — printing ceremony is being abolished and the administration is asking Congress for permission to issue special 90-day tourist visas under simplified procedures.

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges is in charge of the new tourist promotion program. He estimates it will cost $3 million during its first year of operation and $4.7 million a year after that.

Most of the money will go for advertising. Mr. Hodges figures that advertising will cost $2.5 million and that sales promotion, research, and editorial promotion will take another $1.16 million.

The program hasn't been approved by Congress as yet but the Commerce Department has made two tentative opening moves by shipping a small batch of travel posters to overseas offices and by preparing a special information bulletin about the United States for overseas distribution.

The chief beneficiaries of the multi-million-dollar government promotion campaign will be the tourist industries — the travel agencies, airlines, steamship companies, railroads, hotels, restaurants and gift shops.

But the administration is happy to give them a helping hand — so long as it can simultaneously chop a piece out of the tourist gap.

Trials By Publicity

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Electric Firm Chiefs Shown Little Sympathy

Maybe it's unfortunate the executives of those electrical companies aren't Communist sympathizers or party members — for, if they were, they probably would have won the support of many of the so-called liberals and might not have been subjected to the current "trial by publicity."

There might even have been demonstrations in their behalf and a demand for the abolition of the subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee which is at present conducting the hearings.

For, basically, it might have been argued the electrical executives exercised only their right of freedom of assembly or freedom of association or freedom of speech, and merely got together to indulge in freedom of conversation.

It will be noted that the witnesses from the electrical business who have testified thus far before Sen. Kefauver's committee didn't take refuge in the Fifth Amendment. Nor did they condemn the committee for engaging in "exposure for exposure's sake."

Not long ago the American Civil Liberties Union issued a fervent statement, signed by 250 college professors, denouncing a congressional committee for trying to substitute its investigations for trials and law enforcement proceedings. The statement said:

"Not only teachers, but all Americans, we insist, must be free from trial by publicity — from what Mr. Justice Black has called 'exposure, obloquy and public scorn.' We would be the first to concede that teachers have no greater rights than other citizens — just as they have no lesser rights."

But, strangely enough, hardly a voice has since been lifted in support of the men in the electrical business who are being made the object of considerable publicity through the Senate committee's public investigations.

Unpleasant, however, though it may be to the electrical companies' executives who are testifying about the meetings at which prices were allegedly fixed, it is in the public interest for Congress to get all the facts from every individual who has any knowledge of the price-fixing process. The purpose of this, of course, is to learn how to write corrective legislation for the future.

UNHAPPILY, the antitrust laws are by no means clear nor are the decisions in the court cases that have been tried over a long period of years models of simplicity. Senators this week asked some of the witnesses, for instance, if they knew they were violating antitrust laws, and one of the executives replied:

"It had been so common and had gone on for so many years that we lost sight of that."

The public gets from this the impression that violations were always willful, when actually there is little doubt that the fuzziness of the whole antitrust question has resulted in all sorts of individual interpretations as to where legality begins or ends.

Thus, for example, is any meeting between businessmen to discuss industrial costs, such as wage rates and uniform charges in the whole employment field, illegal? If so, many a conference of the managements of several competing companies — induced by industrywide negotiations with national labor unions — might possibly be construed as part of a conspiracy to fix sales prices.

INCIDENTALLY Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy made a speech to the American Management Association in which he is quoted as having said that the Department of Justice is concerned with collusion and conspiracy and not with prices as such. He added:

"I can conceive of a number of different instances where you have identical pricing which wouldn't be illegal or improper."

The surrounding factors are proper subjects for examination by the Department of Justice in each case because, as Chief Justice Warren said in the Watkins Case on June 17, 1957, a congressional committee has certain limitations. He wrote in behalf of the majority of the court:

"Nor is the Congress a law enforcement or trial agency. These are functions of the executive and judicial departments of government."

Unquestionably some individuals and companies will get some unfavorable publicity but the underlying purpose of a congressional committee is to find out what happened so that new legislation or amendments to existing laws may be enacted.

PAINFUL as it may be to the persons who are pilloried in public, this is the best way Congress can learn what happens when ambiguously phrased laws and even more perplexing phrases of court decisions are proclaimed as the law of the land.

Only by thorough inquiry can the facts of antitrust and monopoly be fully exposed. The same holds true of laws affecting national security, subversion or infiltration. Whatever mistakes the electrical companies' executives may have made, they didn't question the right of the committee to investigate and they certainly didn't take the Fifth Amendment or the First Amendment. Nor did they instigate college professors to demand the "abolition" of the committee. Or did they encourage student demonstrations throughout the country. They just took it on the chin.

What they did may turn out to be in the interest of a clarification and perhaps strengthening of the anti-trust laws, especially in the uncertain field of price fixing.

Matter of Fact

If you should ever meet up with a deadly snake, here's a heartening fact to remember. Snakes can't crawl faster than an adult can run. They look faster than they are. A black racer was once timed and viewers were asked to guess his speed. Most guesses were 10 to 15 miles an hour. Yet the snake at his speediest hit no more than 3.7 miles an hour.

Faded advertisements show they had "wonder drugs" way back in Civil War times: "Scalds and burns may prove dangerous and perhaps fatal. A kick of a horse may cause a bad bruise. The slip of an axe may cause a serious cut. Have you Peter Perry's Pain Killer handy? It has no equal for the cure of scalds, burns, cuts, swellings, bruises, sores, insect bites—etc."

In the summer "a weasel is a weasel." In the winter, he becomes an ermine and his fur is precious. His brown fur turns snowy white, except for the jet-black end of his tail.

Barbs

According to scientists, anger impairs the vision. No wonder some people get so mad they can't see straight.

Give less thought to what people think of you and you'll have more time to think well of them.

Salem Whips Cardinal Mooney, Beaver Track Squads

Quakers Capture 12 of 14 Events

Beavers Finish Last; Davidson, Janovec, Call Are Double Winners

By DICK BRAUTIGAM

Feeling right at home in the cold, rain and mud of Reilly Stadium, Coach Karl Zellers' Salem High track team added a triangular meet to its string of six straight dual victories yesterday afternoon by whipping Youngstown Cardinal Mooney and Beaver Local.

The Quakers captured 12 of the 14 events in rolling up 82 points. Mooney grabbed the other two firsts and wound up in second place with 55½ markers. Beaver was third with 10½ points.

Although the weather and the condition of the track seems to get worse each meet, the Quakers still continue to show steady improvement. In winning 12 events yesterday, the Salem track team posted their best marks of the season in five of them.

Herb Call, Don Davidson and Ron Janovec were all double winners for Salem.

DAVIDSON WON the discus at 137 ft. and the high jump at 5-6. Both of these marks were his best of the season in competition. "Big D" got off to a slow start this season but indications are now that he is almost ready to make a serious bid for the Columbiana County title here on May 12 in both the discus and high jump.

Davidson cleared 5-11 in a practice jump at Reilly on Thursday. He did not attempt to go over 5-6 in the meet yesterday. He made it on his first try.

Salem's leading scorer yesterday was Co-captain Ronnie Janovec. He took firsts in the 100-yard dash and the shot put, ran anchor on the winning half mile relay team, and placed second behind teammate Jake Evans in the 220. This gave him a total of 14½ points. The meet was scored on a 5-3-2-1 basis with only the first two places counting in the relays.

Janovec's 10.5 in the 100 was his best effort of the season. His winning toss in the shot put was 46-7.

Running with Janovec on the half mile relay team were Dave Edling, Bill Beery and Jake Evans. They won the event easily with a 1:36.2 clocking.

BEERY TURNED in another sensational anchor leg in the mile relay which made up a lot of ground and brought the Quakers a first place. The talented sophomore had close to 20 yards to make up when John Floyd passed him the baton for the final lap.

Beery closed the gap in a hurry and was pulling away at the finish. The winning time was 3:47.5. This knocked two full seconds off the best previous mark of the quartet composed of Edling, Dave Taus, Floyd and Beery. Cardinal Mooney, which placed second was clocked in 3:48.6.

Beery's winning time of 53.6 in the 440 was also his best of the season. On a fast track, Beery would have a good shot at the Salem 440 record of 52.2 set last year by Dan Krichbaum.

Mike Durand, a Salemite attending Cardinal Mooney, placed third in the 440 yesterday with a time of 57.1. He also ran on Mooney's mile relay team that placed second.

SALEM'S UNBEATEN hurdler, Herb Call, won both the highs and lows yesterday with plenty to spare. He ran the highs in 16.3 and the lows in 22.3.

Rick Sulea won his specialty, the pole vault, for Salem. He cleared 10-4 on his third try and called it a day. Freddy Harshman and John Panzotto of Salem and Goforth of Beaver Local tied for second at 9-10.

Sophomore Dave Capel took the high jump for Salem at 18-1¾. Jake Evans' winning time in the 220 was 23.9. It was in this event, the ninth on the card, that Salem started to pull away from Mooney in the team scoring. Salem's one-two finish in the 220 gave the Quakers 48 points, compared to 41 for Mooney and 7 for Beaver at this point in the meet.

The only two races that the Quakers failed to win were the 80-yard run and the mile. Jim Cleary of Mooney, probably the best half-miler in the district, was an easy winner yesterday with his time of 2:04.2. Cleary has run the 880 in 2:01.3 already this year.

Mooney's Tom Scheetz, who finished second to Cleary in the 880, won the mile in 5:05.

BEAVER LOCAL'S highest finisher was Goforth who tied for second in the pole vault. Shingleton ran the low hurdles in 24 flat and the 220-dash in 24.9 to take fourth in each of those events. Carroll's 5-2 in the high jump got him a tie for third.

Mike Durbin of the Beavers ran the 100 in 19.9 which brought him a third place.

In the first event of the meet, the high hurdles, Wilkinson placed third and Gaydos got a fourth, giving the Beavers three points.

Mooney and Beaver, both relatively new schools, are just starting to build track teams. Beaver still doesn't have a track of its own to practice on.

This was Beaver's third straight defeat of the season. Cardinal Mooney has now won three meets and lost four.

Salem will put its unblemished mark on the line against Ravenna here Tuesday.

Twins Nipped 6-5 by Angels

Chisox Beat A's, Orioles Also Win

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Angels, after losing eight in a row, three times came from behind on home runs and knocked the Minnesota Twins out of the American League lead with a 6-5 victory in 12 innings Friday night. The winning run scored when Ken Hunt was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded.

Baltimore beat Washington 4-2 and the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 4-2 in the only other AL games played. Boston-Detroit and Cleveland-New York were postponed because of cold and rain.

The Angels trailed 3-0 with one of Minnesota's runs unearned before Earl Averill's fourth-inning home run. His second in two games at Wrigley Field, tied it.

The Twins broke the tie on two walks and Reno Bertoia's single in the eighth, but Ted Kuszewski squared it again in the same inning with his fourth home run—this one a 400-foot shot.

In the 12th, Don Mincher doubled and scored on an error, giving the Twins a 5-4 edge. But the Angels bounced back once more, tying it on Ken Hamlin's home run—his first hit of the season. Then they won it when loser Bill Pleis (2-1), working in relief of Pete Ramos, plunked Hunt after singles by Albie Pearson and Ken Aspromonte and an intentional walk to Klu had loaded the bases. Tom Morgan (1-0) was the winner in relief of Ron Kline.

A two-run homer by Jerry Adair broke up a 1-1 tie for the Orioles in the seventh at Washington and beat Bennie Daniels (0-2). Chuck Estrada started for the Orioles and had a one-hit shut-out until the sixth, when Marty Keough walloped a solo homer. Hoyt Wilhelm was the winner.

Reliever Frank Baumann saved it for the White Sox and Cal McLish (2-1) at Kansas City, getting pinch-hitter Bob Boyd on a bouncer to the mound for the final out with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Salem Teams Trip Minerva

For the third day in a row, Kirk Ritchie, an 8th grader, set a new Salem Junior High record in the hurdles as the Quaker 7th and 8th grade track squads chalked up victories over their counterparts from Minerva on a wet track yesterday at Minerva.

The Quaker 7th grade won 42-30 and the local 8th grade came through, 50-23.

Ritchie, who has been competing with the Salem freshman team, moved back into 8th grade competition yesterday and set a record of 15.5 in the 120-yard hurdles. His old mark was 15.8.

SINCE SALEM 7th and 8th grade records are kept by weight divisions rather than by grades, Ritchie's hurdle record is recorded in the lightweight division. The dividing point is 110 pounds.

Ritchie's lightweight record is better than the heavyweight standard which was also set yesterday by Dick Ehrhart. Ehrhart was clocked in 16.1 in finishing second to Ritchie. The old heavyweight record was 16.6.

Ronnie Hofmann was the star for the Salem 7th grade team yesterday. He won the 100-yard dash in 12.1 and the 220 in 28.9. He also teamed up with Gary Stoddard, Howard Fowler and Elliot to win the 880-yard relay in 2:04.6.

STODDARD COPPED the 440-yard dash in 1:06.2. Chuck Alexander took first place in the high jump with his leap of 4-4. The other first for the Salem 7th grade was picked up by Dick Miglarini who tossed the shot put 34-3.

Besides winning the 120-yard hurdles, Ritchie of the Salem 8th grade team tied teammates Frank Fitch and Dick Ehrhart for first at 4-2 in the high jump.

Jeff McArtor copped the shot put with a toss of 37-7½. Harold Schramm won the 440 in 1:03.4 for another five points for the Quaker 8th graders. Boyd took the 220 for Salem in 27.7 and also was a member of the winning 880-yard relay team.

Several events were not held because of the bad weather.

Here are the results of yesterday's meet.

Palmer Leads Texas Open In 3rd Round

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) —

Arnold Palmer, whose throne as the biggest man in golf has been taken over by a 25-year-old upstart, was on the way to making up some of the lost ground today as he led the $30,000 Texas Open into its third round.

Palmer won more money last year than any man in golf history—over $80,000—but this year he woke up to find young Gary Player of South Africa leading him by some $11,000, with the tour almost half over.

So Arnie got busy and Friday he shot an eight-under-par 63 to grab the lead at the halfway mark in the Texas Open with 130.

He sets out today three strokes ahead of young Al Geiberger of Santa Barbara, Calif., and eight strokes to the good over Player as he seeks not only a repeat as champion of the Texas Open but his fourth tournament victory of the year.

If he bats the $4,300 first money he can pull within about $7,000 of Player.

Palmer said he wanted to overtake Player in the money race but won't be playing many tournaments at the end of the tour due to other commitments, including the British Open. But he's going to make a big try.

Geiberger was in second place with 133 while Jack Burke of Houston and Al Balding of Toronto, Canada, were tied for third place at 134.

Bloodmobile to Visit Columbiana Monday

COLUMBIANA — A last-minute reminder was issued today to prospective donors by sponsors of the scheduled Red Cross Bloodmobile visit Monday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Grace United Church.

The vital role played by plasma in treatment of the victims in Monday's fiery explosion at the Columbiana Boiler Co. points to the importance of maintaining a ready supply at area hospitals, one of the objects of the semi-annual collections by the mobile blood bank, the sponsors said.

A nursery service and transportation for mothers of young children will be provided by the Newcomers Club. The Hospital Auxiliary will operate a canteen for the benefit of donors, with donuts and cookies to be contributed by the Business & Professional Women's Club. Doctors from Columbiana and Leetonia will take turns of duty at the blood center.

PRINCIPAL W. G. Gloss has announced the scholarship team which will represent Columbiana High at the finals of the annual district-state scholarship tests.

Following are the members and the subjects in which they will be tested Saturday, May 6, at Salem High School testing center:

brust and John Barnum, physics; Brian Arbuckle and Tom Bookwalter, algebra I; Lana Falot and Becky Way, algebra II;

THE BOAT AND SKI CLUB will take its first scheduled cruise Sunday. Officers expect 15 automobiles, each towing a pleasure boat, to assemble Sunday at 11 a.m. near the bathhouse in Firestone Park from where the caravan will leave to spend the afternoon on the Turkeyfoot Lake, near Akron.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Feicht are the parents of a son born Tuesday in Salem City Hospital.

Mrs. Freida Berryman, was named president of the business and Professional Women's Club at its meeting Tuesday in Grace Church.

position of microfilm operator on Sept. 26, 1960, after her appointment had been made on Sept. 12.

Plaintiff Ruth Wining took a purported examination for the position of microfilm operator and photostat operator on March 30, 1959, and was appointed on April 1, 1959, but she has never taken an examination for the position of clerk to the dog warden for which she claims Civil Service status.

Brokaw and Cole are filing the motion under rule VI of the rules of practice of the Court of Appeals. It provides that they have five days to submit their findings of fact to the opposing counsel, Atty. Guy Mauro of Salem and Paul Tobin of East Liverpool, who have five days to prepare objections and suggestions and submit the motion to the court.

Whatever the outcome, Brokaw says he will appeal the April 26 ruling that the four Democrats have Civil Service protection and were discharged illegally.

The four Republicans on the jobs have received no pay. The State Personnel Department will not approve their names on the commissioners payroll, so that they can be certified and paid by the county auditor.

Ohio Historical Unit Elects Atty. Vodrey

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The new president of the Ohio Historical Society is Charles E. Frohman of Sandusky, elevated from first vice president to succeed Appellate Judge Lehr Fess of Toledo.

Daniel J. Porter 31, director of the historical society of York, Pa., was named to the new post of assistant director of the Ohio society.
